

FATE OF POLAR DIRIGIBLE 'ITALIA' STILL UNKNOWN

ADJOURNMENT OF CONGRESS DRAWS NEARER

Senate Cools Off in Session Today and May Quit Tuesday

BULLETIN
Washington, May 28—(AP)—The Senate today voted down all efforts to fix a date for adjournment but after a cooling off period leaders began informal conferences looking to a reconsideration of the matter so that Congress might quit tomorrow at 5 p. m.

A move for reconsideration is expected to be made late today or tomorrow and an agreement is expected to be reached before that effort is launched, whereby the Swing-Johnson Boulder Canyon dam bill will be made the unfinished business of the Senate at adjournment, placing it in order for first consideration next December.

AN EARLIER REPORT

Washington, May 28—(AP)—Congress entered the last lap of its turbulent, hard-working session today facing conditions similar to those of the Sixty-Ninth legislature—the Senate battling over Boulder Canyon dam and the House with nothing but little bills to clean up before adjournment.

The House already has voted to close down for the summer and fall at 5 p. m. tomorrow, but its adjournment resolution faced a severe test today in the Senate, which was to vote upon it after the regular first two hours of business.

Confronted by a filibuster, proponents of the Colorado River development legislation were ready to delay the end of the session until next Saturday at least, but whether they had the strength to win in this maneuver was doubtful.

Plan Filibuster.
As a last resort to obtain a vote, the Boulder Dam advocates were prepared, in event their adjournment postponement attempts fail, to keep the Senate in continuous session until whatever time is fixed for quitting. Should this develop and the House time of 5 p. m. tomorrow is approved, the body would have another marathon session of 29 hours.

The House, which cleaned up its important bill—calendar Saturday with disposition of the tax reduction measure, also ran into the possibility of a meeting today that would carry it well into the night.

Meeting at 11 a. m. it planned to remain in session for twelve hours if need be to dispose of several hundred uncontested measures, unless an adjournment is taken out of respect to Representative Butler, of Pennsylvania, who died here Saturday.

With vote-delaying tactics marshalled against not only the Boulder Canyon dam measure, but against the $274,000,000 administration naval building bill should by any chance the former legislation be disposed of, little hope is entertained for final enactment of the last flock of House little bills.

House Made Records.
The Boulder Dam and Naval bills are the only ones of the list of major tasks mapped out for the Seventieth Congress yet to be passed by both houses. The House has approved both of these, however, and established what leaders believe to be one of the biggest legislative achievements in any six months of Congressional activity.

Looking back over the record of this session, one finds four important proposals still awaiting President Coolidge's signature—the Muscle Shoals, tax reduction, postal rates revision and second deficiency appropriation measures. All were sent to the White House in two days of last week's business rush.

Of four other big jobs completed, three have been placed on the statute books. They are the flood control, merchant marine development and alien property settlement acts. Farm relief, the other major bill to meet Senate and House approval, fell by the wayside when the Senate sustained the President's veto of the McNary-Haugen proposal.

Seven Bills to Die.
As the smoke fades away from the battle between the President and the legislature over vetoed bills, a semi-final feature of this session, seven of the rejected measures are seen still in committee pigeon-holes, there probably to die with the sound of the gavel.

Of thirteen unsigned by Mr. Coolidge, Congress has enacted three by overriding votes, but is has failed in three other attempts to muster the two-thirds vote necessary to jump the veto obstacle.

New York Woman, Guilty, Collapses

Albany, N. Y., May 28—(AP)—Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, former Secretary of State, found guilty of grand larceny by a jury in Albany County Supreme Court Saturday night, was suffering from a nervous collapse today.

A consultation of physicians was called to determine when she could leave Albany for the three months rest recommended by her doctor.

Justice Stephen Callaghan announced after conviction that he would defer sentence until September 4. In the meantime she will be allowed her freedom on bail.

Elected to statewide office less than four years ago, Mrs. Knapp was found guilty of the grand larceny of a state census pay check for $2,875.03 drawn and cashed during her term of office.

She faces a prison sentence which, under the provisions of law, may range from one day in a county jail to not more than ten years in state prison.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Pelton, Mrs. Alice Pontius and son Bill, Mrs. Adie Eastman, and Mrs. Warren Bradshaw were in Davenport Sunday where they visited Mrs. Rowland, sister of Mrs. Eastman, who is very ill.

TIRED POSSEMEN CONTINUE SEARCH FOR BOLD BANDITS

Kansas Manhunt Has Assumed Unusual Proportions

Scott City, Kans., May 28—(AP)—A casualty list showing three dead, one missing and two wounded today kept score of possemen on the alert in the hope some trace would be found of the four desperadoes who disappeared in the canyons and thickets of this rugged country after robbing a bank at Lamar, Colo., Wednesday last.

After four days devoted to following vague leads, possemes yesterday hurried to a cabin near Healy, Kans., when the robbers were reported barricaded there. Like many other ruffians that caused the volunteer searchers to hasten to isolated places in western Colorado and western Kansas, this proved without foundation. The cabin yielded a party of hunters.

Shoot One Another

The tension under which the three possemes worked was indicated Saturday night when L. L. Robinson of Hill City, Kans., and Carl T. Peterson, former Sheriff of that city, were shot and seriously wounded by possemes Robinson and Peterson were on patrol duty near Norton and drew the fire of a posse sent to that area on the report of a farmer boy that "bandits held me up."

Scores had had little sleep since Thursday night when Dr. W. W. Wineinger of Dighton, 20 miles east of here, was kidnapped to treat one of the robbers wounded by bank officials and slain the next day.

With the man hunt continuing in this section, funeral services were held at Lamar for A. N. Parrish, president of the First National Bank there, and his son John F. Parrish, cashier, slain when they returned the fire of the robbers. Parrish, pioneer western banker, was able to wound one of the robbers before he fell with a bullet in his head. Among the hundreds who attended the ceremony was Governor W. H. Adams of Colorado.

No Hope For Third

Finding of the body of Dr. Wineinger left little hope that the life of E. A. Kessinger, kidnapped cashier of the Lamar bank, had been spared. He was used as a shield when the robbers escaped in a running gun fight with Colorado officers the day of the robbery.

A check of the loot obtained by a bond house at Pueblo, Colo., showed the robbers obtained about $10,000 in cash and approximately $76,000 worth of municipal and corporation bonds.

Tire Marks Lead to Arrest Nelson Boys

Donald Black, 19, and Chester Moats, 17, both of Nelson, were arrested last evening by Sheriff Ward Miller, following an investigation of a series of thefts at the home of W. S. Shigley, a Northwestern railroad employe. When arraigned before Justice Grover Gehant last night, charges of larceny were preferred and the cases continued for a period of ten days, both boys being released under bonds of $1,000 each which was furnished by their parents.

A few nights ago, Mr. Shigley complained, a valuable kit of tools and a roll of copper wire was stolen from his premises. Saturday night, a 15 gallon drum of lubricating oil was taken. Tire marks in front of the Shigley home furnished the clew which led to Black's arrest at his home last evening. He admitted to Sheriff Miller, it was stated, that he and Moats stole the drum of oil Saturday night. Moats was arrested later in Rock Falls.

Both boys denied the previous thefts and took Sheriff Miller to a culvert on the Rock Island road near the Scholl farm, where they had hid the drum after removing some of its contents.

BEARDSTOWN RESIDENTS

NOW SAFE FROM FLOODS
Beardstown, Ill.—(AP)—Beardstown, which takes its floods with a grin, has the laugh on its ancient enemy, the Illinois River.
The last concrete soon will be poured on a retaining wall to keep the river where it belongs. It rained this spring, but the river remained in its banks, and this has been one of the few spring seasons that Beardstown folk have not gone to church in boats and transacted business in rubber boots.

Time after time the city has been inundated—literally. Beardstown got tired of its wetness last year and decided to construct the retaining wall. Elsewhere such things are called sea walls, but Beardstown refuses to dignify its arch enemy by calling it a "sea."

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Montgomery of Chicago and Joe B. Koberstine and daughter Myrtle of Sterling were entertained over Sunday at the home of Harry Bieseker and Mrs. Elizabeth Lady in Dixon.

Mr. and Mrs. William Struckman visited friends in Sterling Sunday afternoon.

FORMER CANDIDATE FOR GOV. OF ILLINOIS TAKEN IN RAID STAGED IN AMBOY SATURDAY

An appeal from city officials of Amboy, complaining of liquor traffic in and about that place, resulted in a series of five raids conducted by Sheriff Ward Miller and a force of deputies Saturday afternoon. A total of four places in Amboy and a home about three miles south on state highway route 2 were visited.

Foremost among those taken in custody by the sheriff on state warrants and whose homes were raided was James A. Logan, once a candidate for Governor of Illinois, on another occasion aspirant to the office of United States Senator and also originator of the "Light Wines and Beer Party." Logan, who conducts a watch repair shop and the New York hotel in Amboy, was the first to receive a visit from the raiding party. A small amount of liquor was said to have been found at his place.

As the program of raids continued, those arrested were taken to the city building, where they were placed under guard of two deputies until all of the raids had been completed, when they were taken to the county jail here. The warrants were sworn out before Justice Martin J. Cannon Saturday and the offenders were taken before him this morning and all were held to the September grand jury under bonds of $1,000 each.

Aged Woman Accused
At the St. Brown home, considerable liquor was reported to have been found. Ed Davis was placed under arrest at his home on a state warrant charging him with the sale of intoxicating liquor. At the home of Henry Benson the raiders are said to have found a part of a copper still together with some liquor. Benson formerly resided in this city. The last raid was conducted at the home of Mrs. E. H. Reinholz, who resides about three miles south of Amboy on route 2. The women, who is said to be more than 70 years of age, was ill and was not taken to the county jail with the other parties. She will appear later when her health will permit.

It was alleged that liquor had been sold recklessly to young boys and repeated complaints registered with the city officials of Amboy, led to an appeal being made to Sheriff Miller who directed the series of raids.

CAPONE, "BIG SHOT" OF GANG, IS IN BUSINESS

Becomes Partner in Cleaning Business to Stop Bombing

Chicago, May 29—(AP)—What police have been trying for months to do—stop racketeering and terrorism in the cleaning and dyeing business—today has become the chore of Al Capone, the "Big Shot" of the gangsters.

Capone, who has been blamed for much and found guilty of nothing, has become a principal partner in the Sanitary Cleaning Shops, Inc., which has a large plant now nearing completion. His sponsor is Morris Becker, a cleaner and dyer for 42 years.

Becker, in a statement given out by the Employers' Association, said the alliance with Capone gives him the "best protection in the world" from racketeers and others who he charges have threatened his business by bombs, violence and intimidation.

Becker believes the entry of Capone into the business will put some long-delayed fear into the hearts of those who Becker says have been making the cleaning and dyeing business an unhealthy one for those who refuse to fall in line with those seeking to control it.

When word went forth that Becker was opening a new shop and that Capone was connected with it, Max Krauss, legal advisor to the Master Cleaners & Dyers Association, which Becker names as his nemesis, went to see Capone about it. That, at least was the way G. L. Hostetter, Secretary of the Employers' Association, heard it.

Capone, Hostetter heard, was not cordial in his reception of Krauss. Among other things, Capone was understood to have told Krauss not to "monkey" with the new business.

Polo Man Arrested by State Policeman

Roy Riggs of Polo was arrested last evening about 5 o'clock by State Highway Officer Hal Roberts at the North Galena avenue traffic light after he had crashed into a new Chevrolet sedan owned and driven by E. W. Long of Mt. Morris. Riggs was alleged to have been highly intoxicated and it was reported that the officer found a pint of liquor in his possession.

He was taken to the county jail and this morning the arresting officer filed an information in the Lee county court charging him with driving an automobile while in an intoxicated condition. Riggs retained an attorney and Judge Leech continued the case until the June term of the county court, placing the Polo man under $1,000 bonds which he was unable to furnish, and he was taken back to the county jail. Riggs told Judge Leech that he had served terms in the Ohio county jail and the state farm at Vandalia for similar offenses. It was intimated that other charges would probably be lodged against him later in the day.

Ernest Thommell and Otto Stephenson of Chicago entertained a party of friends at their cottage, Cedar Crest over the week end.

A. F. Larson and wife, formerly of Dixon, now of Chicago, were week end visitors of friends and relatives in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. DeCamp of La Grange are spending several days visiting friends and relatives in Dixon.

N. T. Allee of the National Carbon Co. of Chicago is calling on automobile and accessory dealers in Dixon today.

Chicago's Meanest Robbers Escaped

Chicago, May 28—(AP)—Chicago's meanest robbers escaped today after holding up Richard Boehler, 38, blind organist for a movie theater, beating him into unconsciousness and kicking his cane out of reach. The two robbers who obtained $155 and the blind man's watch called him by name but he did not recognize their voices, Boehler said.

A fine new Willys Knight sedan belonging to Alfred L. Boothby of Savanna, stolen from the streets of that city last night about 8:30, was recovered here about two hours later last night by Chief Van Bibber, together with the driver of the machine. The man gave the name of Jesse Black, 23, of Aurora, a former resident of the Lee Center township.

Chief Van Bibber was notified at 1 o'clock of the theft of the car and was on North Galena avenue when he saw it, driven by a young man, stop at a lunch stand. The chief arrested Black in the lunch stand a few minutes later and took him to the police station with the stolen car. Early this morning Chief of Police H. W. Truninger of Savanna and the owner of the car came to Dixon to get the machine. Black was taken back to Savanna on a warrant charging him with the theft of the car.

At the police station Black is said to have told conflicting stories, in which he denied strongly having taken the car. At first he denied having ever been in Savanna but later said that he had been visiting a "boy friend" in that city yesterday and was hitch-hiking to his home in Aurora.

Van Bibber in Fast Work Sunday Night

The United cigar store was entered probably during the early hours this morning, according to a report made to Chief Van Bibber about noon, and as far as is known, very little was taken. Entrance was gained by prying open a window in the rear of the building and exit was made through a rear door which was left standing open. A number of electric cigar and cigarette lighters were reported to have been taken but the cash register was not tampered with and the stock did not appear to have been ransacked.

HOLIDAY ON WEDNESDAY

General holiday hours will prevail in Dixon Wednesday, Memorial day. Some of the grocery stores and markets will be open until 10 o'clock in the forenoon, while others will be closed all day; all of the filling stations and accessory stores will be open to serve the public. Dry goods and clothing stores will remain closed for the entire day. The court house, city hall and all professional business will suspend for the day.

At the postoffice, there will be a general suspension of business with only the regular holiday schedule of collection and dispatch of mail matter. There will be no deliveries on either the city or rural routes and none of the departments will be in operation.

Mr. Stowell escaped with only minor bruises.

ROAD AMUNDSEN AND CAPTAIN OTTO SVERDRUP, noted Polar explorers, aided the Norwegian authorities in preparing an auxiliary relief expedition on a large scale with Captain Raiser-Larsen in command.

The base ship Citta di Milano put out from Kings Bay yesterday but was held up by ice floes.

The steamer Braganza put out from Tromsøe to assist the Citta di Milano.

Oslo was the center of all sorts of rumors regarding the possible fate of the Italia but none of these could be confirmed.

Efforts in California to pick up further messages believed relayed from the Italia saying that the ship had met with disaster, were fruitless, the messages first reported yesterday are believed to have been relayed at Vladivostok.

The Italia was six and a half days out of Spitzbergen today, last definite word from her having been received at 9:00 a. m., Greenwich time, Friday (4:00 a. m., Eastern standard time).

ICE BLOCKS RELIEF

Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, May 28—(AP)—Ice, which might have caused the collapse of the dirigible Italia, today blocked the first attempt to search for the missing airship.

The Citta di Milano, base ship of General Umberto Nobile's Polar expedition, sailed from Kings Bay to make a preliminary survey of rescue conditions. At 9 p. m. last night the vessel reported by wireless that she was off Amsterdam Island off the northern coast of Spitzbergen. A strong wind was blowing ice floes against the coast, the message added.

Theories of Fate.
One of the hypotheses discussed concerning the fate of the Italia was that ice and wet snow forming on the airship might have wrecked it. It was recalled that the dirigible Norge, in which General Nobile flew over the North Pole two years ago, was at the point of collapsing at one time under such a burden.

With the Citta di Milano blocked by ice today other searching plans were being made. Governor Bassoco of Spitzbergen suggested that dog teams might be sent from Green Harbor or Advent Bay. He also suggested that the Norwegian naval flying corps could probably send airplanes to assist.

Still Have Faith.
Despite this atmosphere of grim uncertainty, the Italians expressed the belief that the dirigible was safe.

Wireless operators on the Citta di Milano stuck to their posts, either listening for the Italia or sending out messages of encouragement in the hope that even with her sending apparatus silent, the Italia might be able to pick up messages.

AVIATOR SETS FORTH

Oslo, Norway, May 28—(AP)—Lieutenant Luetzow Holm, Norwegian flying ace, started at noon today from Horten with a Norwegian navy hydroplane for Tromsøe on the first leg of a trip to Spitzbergen to begin a search in the air for the missing dirigible Italia.

Lieutenant Holm, who intends first to explore the north and northeast coasts of Spitzbergen, hoped to arrive at Tromsøe at midnight. He will immediately board the sealer Hobby, hired by the Italian government for the Spitzbergen trip, which is ready to start as soon as the naval monoplane is loaded aboard her.

Lieutenant Holm was accompanied by Mechanic Myre.

The steamer Braganza, which also first leg of a trip to Spitzbergen, is at Tromsøe. Her commander will

THE SINGING SEA—
(Aborigine)
The sea hath habit; the sea hath song.
And I have heard it singing
Where wildest birds have never flown.
Nor temple bells go ringing.

For the sea is organ and orchestra.
And some have heard them playing
On moonless nights; down trackless ways
Where derelicts go straying.

The sea is said as woman is said;—
The sailors have heard it sobbing,
Where ghost ships sever the grayish mists
With never an engine throbbing.

And when old ships shall sail no more,
Content at anchors riding,
I, too, shall find in lost lagoons
Some place of sweet abiding.

100 per cent every five years in one industry, makes the work of organizing women a different problem from that of men, who always face the fact of being the bread-winners and working until they are forced to quit.

"American women, because of this transient attitude, never have come forward in great numbers asking for organization. More and more women are going back to the factory after marriage, but only temporarily. For, unless a woman can earn a decent salary enough to employ help at home, it doesn't pay her to work except when she needs some extras like clothes, for the children, a radio, or money to pay for emergencies."

Two and one-half cups cut rhubarb, 3-8 cup granulated sugar, 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons flour, 1-4 cup powdered sugar, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla, plain pastry.

Beat yolks of eggs with granulated sugar mixed and sifted with flour. Add prepared rhubarb and stir until thoroughly mixed. Turn into a pie pan lined with plain pastry and bake thirty minutes in a moderate oven.

Beat whites of eggs until stiff, beat in powdered sugar and vanilla and pile over top of pie when cool. Bake twelve minutes in a slow oven.

If a meringue is not put on a pie until it is cooled the meringue will not liquify.

Short Interviews With Famous Women

By NEA Service.

"Women still look upon jobs as 'transient,' in spite of the fact that there are approximately 9,000,000 women gainfully employed in the United States," said Rose Schneiderman, head of the Women's Trade Union League.

"Women's primary interests in life and their only permanent ones are marriage, home and babies. Careerists really are in a very small majority."

"With work less and less skilled, because of the machine efficiency of this age, this naturally is the case. Running a mangle, stitching seams, punching holes in cans, sorting oranges, and other mechanical jobs can never hold the imagination and interest of women."

Thursday Reading Circle Meeting

The Thursday Reading Circle met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. W. Watts and Mrs. Clea Bunnell. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Anderson. The program was as follows:

Opening song sung by all; Current Events, paper of the afternoon on Theodore Roosevelt was read by Mrs. Richard Cortright; piano selection given by Mrs. Nate Morrill and a vocal duet by Mrs. Robert Anderson and Mrs. Morrill.

At the close of the program the hostesses served delicious refreshments.

Annual May Luncheon Was Delightful Event

The climax of a successful club season was reached Saturday, when the Dixon Woman's Club members and guests assembled at the Christian Church for their annual May luncheon, one of the most festive occasions of the year.

A unique way of finding places did much to aid the old and new members to become acquainted, the aim of such a gathering. The dining room and tables were decorated attractively with spring flowers gathered fresh from the gardens of Dixon homes. The decorations added greatly to the charm of the occasion.

During the luncheon which was served by the ladies of the church, music was furnished by the gifted musician, Miss Florence Hoffman of Dixon accompanied by Miss Hazel Ruest. Miss Hoffman's varied program lent much to the happy occasion and was greatly appreciated by all present. Seldom does one find a musician with such varied ability. She plays equally well the Violin, Cello and Piano adding much to her well chosen selections by singing to her own accompaniments.

After the luncheon the members adjourned to the assembly room to hear two splendid reports on the Chicago Convention given by our efficient delegates—Mrs. L. N. Deutsch and Mrs. I. N. Habecker. These reports were full of facts and showed the same wide awake interest that has been taken by the club members this year. The Dixon Woman's Club during the past year has been one of steady progress, the various departments concentrated on their program each of which was outstanding from an intellectual, artistic or practical standpoint. The club's ever increasing membership and the loyalty of those members bear sufficient proof that the club has maintained its position in an aesthetic sense as well as in its usefulness to the community.

The program of the afternoon was brought to a close by the two musicians, Miss Hoffman and Miss Ruest playing "The End of a Perfect Day" which was indeed fitting and appropriate for not only did it close a happy afternoon but substituting for Carrie Jacob Bonds words we may proudly say we have come to the end of a most successful club year.

Breakfast Proved Charming Affair

Sunday morning Miss Margaret Knell was hostess at her home at a most enjoyable breakfast, at which time she entertained in honor of Miss Helen Parker, whose wedding to John Hoon will take place early in June; and in honor of Mrs. Clayton Westland of New York, who before her marriage was Miss Alice Coppins of Dixon.

Masses of lovely flowers were employed in decorating for the breakfast, the favors at each place carrying out the artistic combination of green and pink. Mrs. Westland and Miss Parker were each presented lovely guest favors. The entire affair was one of great pleasure to all attending.

Bridge Tea Honored Miss Helen Parker

On Saturday afternoon Miss Helen Parker, who has been entertained extensively since the announcement of her engagement to John Hoon, was the guest of honor at a bridge tea which Mrs. C. E. Smith gave at her home. The Smith home in Lane-wood, was beautifully decorated with a profusion of lovely spring flowers including iris, tulips, and roses; and the bridge tables were graced with the roses, the shades of the decorations being kept as nearly as possible to soft hues of lavender and rose. A tempting tea was served. There were guests for three tables. In the awarding of honors at bridge, Mrs. Perry Smith of DeKalb and Mrs. Mollie Riordan cut for first favor and Mrs. Riordan was awarded the favor. Mrs. Gordon Overstreet won the second favor and Miss Helen Parker received the guest favor. Mrs. Perry Smith of DeKalb was an out of town guest.

Chicago, May 28—(AP)—Her husband's table manners were blamed for the suicide of Mrs. Gladys Drew, who took poison yesterday.

Edwin Drew, the husband, said his wife became angry over the manner in which he handled his spoon as they were eating at a restaurant. A quarrel followed and she went home where he found her shortly afterwards, dying.

BACCALAUREATE IS HELD SUNDAY EVE AT ASSEMBLY PARK

Sermon on "Life's Opening Doors" by Rev. erend Marshall

The annual baccalaureate exercises for the class of 1928 of the Dixon high school were held Sunday evening at the Assembly Park Auditorium and were attended by a very large congregation, in which members of all of the congregations of the city participated. The program was carried out as published in Saturday evening's Telegraph.

The sermon of the evening was delivered by Rev. W. W. Marshall, pastor of the First Baptist church, his subject being, "Life's Opening Doors." He said in part:

"Life's Opening Doors" Who knows whether thou art come to the Kingdom for such a time as this? Esther 4-14; "I am the Door." John 10-7.

There are two kinds of religious experience. They are so distinct that they seem to talk different languages, and appeal to different circumstances of age and need. They come from the same source but they seem to move in different directions. They are like the raindrops on the great Divide that are blown by the wind on to different sides of the Rockies and fall into springs that respectively feed the rivers that fall some into the Pacific and some into the Atlantic. Down different slopes they run into different seas but they are essentially one for all the seas are united by channels, straight or crooked.

One Experience calls for Peace—the other for Power. One for Action, the other for Repose. One for Youth, the other for Age. "You cannot put a young head on old shoulders," may be an ancient proverb but it is still a true one. How satisfying to the aged is the text, "Come unto Me and I will give you rest," but the words that appeal to youth have the ring of pith and power in them. "If any man will come after Me, let him take up his Cross and follow Me." "I am the Truth," is the voice of age. But, "I am the Door," becomes the incentive of youth.

After the great war, the British Harbours were full of vessels that had stood the stress of conflict. Shattered and battered by war, they were brought to port after service, like the "Victory" after Trafalgar, like the "Constitution" after the War of 1812 they rest from their labours. No more for them the boisterous wave, and the rolling sea, no more for them the shriek of the wind, the buffeting of the tempest, the fury of the gale but the quiet repose of the bay, with the anchor down, and the sails furled. I saw an epitaph on a Sea Captain's tomb in St. Andrews that expresses the position. "Here I lie, like a battered hulk at rest, stripped of my sails and rigging, with all my life at its best, laid up for an accounting at the Great Day."

Youth reminds me of a day when I saw from the Forth Bridge in 1920 the great Super Dreadnought, "Lord Hood," proceeding to sea for the first time after being completed in Rosyth. She proceeded down the Forth with her anchor astern, her flags flying, her bands playing, her crews cheering, amid the huzzas of the people. There were great and new seas for her to sail, terrible storms to face, great achievements to be accomplished and she was setting out to do it. She was prepared for the deep.

What youth wants today is not rest but motion, not idleness but usefulness, not a harbour of refuge but an open sea and a flowing sail, not a dock to lie in until you stagnate but a helm to guide and a course to steer, not a wharf to warp to but a port to reach. Expectant, undiscouraged youth cannot sing with equanimity, "Must I be carried to the skies on flowery beds of ease."

While others fought to win the prize and sailed through bloody seas. There lies in front of you, the unexplored, the unrealized, the perilous, yet beckoning unknown. At the battle of Anetum, in the Civil War, the Union soldiers were attacking a hill. The firing was terrible and the wayward and broke, but suddenly a young officer, barely more than a youth, sprang to the front. "O men, do you want to live for ever. Charge with me." The men rallied and followed the boy and the hill was won. Christ comes to you today and shows to you life's opening doors. His is not a Gospel of peace alone but of progress and power.

Education may seem to be like going through a great deal to achieve very little but the abstracts of education become transformed into the realities of life.

The door that opens tonight to you from the antechamber of the high school is revealing the possibilities that will lead to the mastery and success in life. "The engine that hath no sand proceedeth not up the grades." You have proved by your being here tonight that you have that sand. You are like the old lady who fell from the eighth story building who was heard to say as she passed the fifth story, "I am all right so far." Solomon, that man of great wisdom, said, "Where there is lack of vision, the people perish." And in the choice of an aim, perplexing problems arise. The compulsion of the school room has to a certain extent passed away, and the liberty of choice is yours. Vacillation and resolution usually mean failure and a Jack of all trades rarely becomes the master of any. Make up your mind and stick to it. One of the greatest gifts God ever gave the race is the gift of Stickativeness. At Edinburgh University Professor Blackie was one day talking to a young student about his thick head, and his inability to grasp what was being taught him. "Well, Professor," said the student, "My head is thick, it is true, but an idea has so much trouble in getting in that it never attempts any further journeys." That man is today one of the most brilliant surgeons in Great Britain.

If you are going to accomplish anything in life you must pass by the Door of Concentration into the passage of Specialisation for the career you have decided to adopt. Then comes the glimpse into truth, then the step into the Mastery, then the success in your chosen vocation. Before Columbus discovered America, the Spanish dollar carried on its obverse the Pillars of Hercules, representing the Strait of Gibraltar, and the motto, "No Plus Ultra," meaning "Nothing beyond." Meaning that there was no more land to the west. After his discovery they had to alter it to "Plus Ultra," "more beyond."

Then there is the Door of Opportunity. Shakespeare says, "There is a tide in the affairs of men, which, taken in its flood, leads on to fortune." The ancients used to make their God of Opportunity with a lock of hair in the forehead, but the rest of the head was bald and the meaning was this that Opportunity must be seized as he approached you for after he was past he had nothing you could catch hold of. When Napoleon's Army was lying at Boulogne waiting for the opportunity to invade Britain, which never came, he was reviewing his troops, when his horse, frightened by the acclamations of the troops, ran away. A soldier jumped from the ranks and seized and held it. "Thank you, Captain," said Napoleon. "Of what regiment, sir?" asked the soldier. "Of My Guards." The soldier straightway dropped his matchlock and joined the Guards. Take every opportunity to learn something about your chosen calling. During the World War, a young recruit saluted the Sergeant Major who was not entitled to it. "You shouldn't salute me," said the N. C. O. "only commissioned officers are entitled to the salute." "I know that," was the reply, "But you'll do all right to practice on."

Then there is the Door of Service. The fields are white already unto harvest. It often leads to the life of adventure. Alexander the Great, when just a boy, was found crying bitterly one day. "What is the matter, Alexander?" asked his mother. "My father will have the whole world conquered before I get a chance. Jason's adventure after the Golden Fleece led to the glorious epic which has enriched the world ever since. Sir Galahad's search after the Holy Grail was his idea of service for his day and generation. Columbus looked beyond the tumbling waves of the Western Ocean and brought the new world into being to redress the balance of the old. Father Damien from Switzerland looks upon the leper through the door of Service and writes a new page in the annals of the martyrs. David Livingstone reveals Africa as the open sore of the world and demands that civilization and Christianity remove the foul blot of slavery from the face of the earth.

The badge of the age is an interrogation point. We look out upon life and we ask what life holds in store for us. Our talents must not be used for selfish ends. The secret purposes of the heart determine the outgrowth and achievement of the life. The focussed life is the irresistible life. John the Baptist was called a burning and a shining light. He was a Voice that spoke of Service. A sign-board that pointed the way, a messenger of God, a zealous flame of whom Christ was the Flame Master. Let us in service be his Flame Children. Although youth has much to give to the world it has much to receive from it. You would laugh at the architect who would build a two story house without a stair. The Chinese artist needs perspective for his man, his house, and his bridge are of equal size. So when you enter, through the Door of Service you will get a true perspective of your life's value.

There is a striking passage in the chapter dealing with the heroes of King David, which says, "The Man that shall touch them must be filled with iron." The words are spoken concerning the three greatest heroes in gallery, Edino the Ezmite who withstood the onslaught of 800 Philistines.

BY ALAN J. GOULD

Associated Press Sports Editor
Boston, May 23—(AP)—Bill Carrigan, the iron gray haired, keen-eyed chief of the Boston Red Sox, doesn't live on a baseball past, even though he might be accorded some privileges in that respect as the manager of world's championship teams here in 1915 and 1916.

Bill has young ideas and a young team, for the most part, that he is fast developing into a combination to be reckoned with in the American League.

Nevertheless Carrigan may be persuaded to turn back the pages a little to tell you that Ty Cobb was probably the greatest all-around player he ever knew, with Tris Speaker a close rival; that Nap Lajoie, the famous Frenchman of the old Cleveland club, was the greatest natural batter; and that Babe Ruth, who came to the big show under Carrigan, was as great a left-handed pitcher before the war as he is an all-around star now.

Cobb probably ranks as the best of them all in general ability but Speaker was not far behind," Carrigan asserts.

"Ty had a little edge at bat, perhaps, but not much. He was also a better base runner but Speaker was greater on defense. I don't think there has been any outfielder on the game who outshone Tris in this respect, although he had a pair of great teammates in Hooper and Lewis on our old team."

"I never saw Ed Deleahanty and I can't pass any opinion on Rogers Hornsby," Carrigan went on. "But I would rank Lajoie as the greatest all-around batsman I have ever seen; certainly the greatest right-hander Ruth, of course is the greatest long distance hitter, without an argument, but Lajoie also could hit 'em far as well as often."

"Most people nowadays do not realize that Ruth was as great a left hander as there was in the business back in 1915-16. He had speed, control, everything. But his pitching fell off when they began alternating him between the outfield and box."

Carrigan can't be drawn into the debate that Connie Mack, John McGraw and Wilbert Robinson engaged in last season as to whether the present-day Yankees, with their slugging power, eclipse the great teams of other days, such as the Baltimore Orioles, the Chicago Cubs, the old Athletics or Red Sox.

"How can you stop a team with that hitting," Bill laconically asks. "The Yankees don't need great pitching."

Neither will Carrigan dwell upon his achievements in lifting the Red Sox out of the debris in less than a season and a half.

But there is another side to the situation in the confidence exhibited in their manager by the players and by the club president, Bob Quinn.

"Carrigan," declares Quinn, "can manage the Red Sox as long as he wants to. When we called him back, a lot of folks said Bill would be handicapped by being out of the game ten years. But that had nothing to do with the main thing—Carrigan's ability as a leader. That is born in him, the players know it and they give him their best."

But there is another side to the situation in the confidence exhibited in their manager by the players and by the club president, Bob Quinn.

"Carrigan," declares Quinn, "can manage the Red Sox as long as he wants to. When we called him back, a lot of folks said Bill would be handicapped by being out of the game ten years. But that had nothing to do with the main thing—Carrigan's ability as a leader. That is born in him, the players know it and they give him their best."

"Ty had a little edge at bat, perhaps, but not much. He was also a better base runner but Speaker was greater on defense. I don't think there has been any outfielder on the game who outshone Tris in this respect, although he had a pair of great teammates in Hooper and Lewis on our old team."

"I never saw Ed Deleahanty and I can't pass any opinion on Rogers Hornsby," Carrigan went on. "But I would rank Lajoie as the greatest all-around batsman I have ever seen; certainly the greatest right-hander Ruth, of course is the greatest long distance hitter, without an argument, but Lajoie also could hit 'em far as well as often."

"Most people nowadays do not realize that Ruth was as great a left hander as there was in the business back in 1915-16. He had speed, control, everything. But his pitching fell off when they began alternating him between the outfield and box."

Carrigan can't be drawn into the debate that Connie Mack, John McGraw and Wilbert Robinson engaged in last season as to whether the present-day Yankees, with their slugging power, eclipse the great teams of other days, such as the Baltimore Orioles, the Chicago Cubs, the old Athletics or Red Sox.

"How can you stop a team with that hitting," Bill laconically asks. "The Yankees don't need great pitching."

POSSIBLE "FIRST LADY"

Mrs. Frank O. Lowden

BY ALLENE SUMNER
Staff Writer for The Telegraph and NEA Service

Oregon, Ill.—Florence Pullman, daughter of the late George M. Pullman, millionaire founder of a certain company that causes thousands of "Georges" and "Johns" to receive handfuls of quarters every morning when the sleepers roll into New York or Chicago or Cleveland or St. Louis, is the present Mrs. Frank O. Lowden, wife of the former governor of Illinois and one of several possible future "First Ladies."

It is no strain on the imagination to believe that a Pullman girl had certain advantages in the way of education and travel and social contacts which might make an ideal First Lady.

Florence Pullman was one of the society debs of 30 or so years ago. She, along with Alice Roosevelt and Ruth Hanna, gave the grand public its daily treat with tales of what "those rich girls" are doing now.

That Name Story
Florence Pullman, one story had it, "thought up all the names" for her father's sleeping cars. She was a student of Indian and Hawaiian tribal lore and christened cars "Laughing Water," "Minnehaha" or "Boola Boola" in bewitching rapidity.

The story continued to have it that every time daughter Florence broke a bottle of champagne over one of her daddy's new cars, he put a silver dollar in her pig bank.

As Florence Pullman grew older the silver dollar, according to legend, expanded into something like $10,000 a year which Daddy Pullman paid his daughter for "thinking up names" for his cars.

Mrs. Lowden laughs, not too amusedly, today at these tales.

Denies the Part
"As a matter of fact," she says, "I never named one of father's cars in all my life. But the public would keep its story."

The public had its story, too, when "that Pullman girl" was engaged to young Frank Lowden, the son of a Sunrise, Minnesota, blacksmith, and a mere practicing attorney whom she had met at the World's Fair in St. Louis.

Newspapers shrieked "America's Richest Heiress Weds Blacksmith's Son—Trousseau Rivals That of Princess."

There were tales of dozens of gowns and coats and suits and shoes and sets of lingerie to the total of a staggering sum. There were speculative stories as to how the young attorney was going to keep up the pace in the way of expenses expected as a matter of course by the millionaire carman's daughter.

Housekeeper, Too
But Florence Pullman had been trained to cook and sew and be a housekeeper, too, just as she has reared her own three daughters. She never, either as a girl or matron, put fashion, the appearance of things, the smart thing to do or see or wear, above the sensible, comfortable, personal choice. Several years ago, when her father died, she and her sister divided the Pullman thirty millions.

Even today she claims to detect fashionable resorts such as Palm Beach and the like, where custom decrees rich people shall go.

The 4500-acre farm on which the Lowdens live in Oregon, Ill., is of the plain garden variety. The house is English style, low rambling, gabled, with a velvety green lawn rolling down to Rock River.

The recreations and social life of the Lowdens is no more according to the Social Hoyles than any other phase of their living. They love to go back to Sunrise, Minn., in the winter time, bundle up in old clothes and coast on bobsleds down all the hills Frank Lowden knew and loved as the village blacksmith's son.

Charitable Work
Mrs. Lowden prefers constructive charitable and civic work to social folders.

The Lowden estate here has a summer camp for poor children. Loads of wizened, puny, city-drained children are brought every week of summer to be fed eggs and creamy milk and go back a little more able to live.

Lowden was governor of Illinois during the war. Mrs. Lowden headed the Woman's Council of National Defense for Illinois, offered her home as a convalescent hospital, knitted sweaters and socks and inspired the women of her state.

The four Lowden children are: one son, Pullman, and three daughters, Frances, Harriet and Florence. Frances is Mrs. Albert Madelene, Jr.; Harriet is Mrs. John B. Drake, Jr., and Florence is not married, but has beaux galore.

NEXT: Gov. Ritchie's mother.

Rathbone Plans Big Coast-to-Coast Road

Springfield, Ill. —(AP)—A coast-to-coast highway which will avoid all cities of any size may pass through central Illinois, if the plans of Henry R. Rathbone, Illinois congressman at large, materialize.

A bill introduced in the House of Representatives at Washington and referred to the roads committee was prepared by Mr. Rathbone and asks appointment of a National Survey Commission to complete plans for the road.

"This great highway would be a band across the continent which would promote the unity of all sections," said Congressman Rathbone. "It would be a bond of union. Construction of this road in times of temporary industrial depression and unemployment would be highly beneficial to labor, putting thousands of men to work."

Under the terms of the bill, the highway would not be less than 500 feet wide, and no part would be in a municipality having a population of 2,500 or more.

"Not a dollar will be taken out of the public treasury nor one cent added to the taxation of the cities through which the road would pass," said Mr. Rathbone. "The whole financing of this highway has been most carefully worked out by some of the greatest financiers of the country who have given it as their opinion that the necessary funds can and will be raised through the increased value of the land acquired for the right of way."

"It has been the common experience that wherever modern highways have been constructed there has been a great increment in value to adjacent property, which would be sufficient to pay for the construction of the road. This is one of the strongest arguments that can be advanced in favor of the bill."

Congressman Rathbone expects the highway to pass near Springfield. It would be of great service in times of emergency earthquakes, fires or floods, and in case of war, he said.

RAIL WORKER BEFORE WAR. HELL BE ARTIST NOW

Washington—(AP)—Leaving a job as railroad section foreman to fight for his adopted country, Angelo de Martino contracted an illness that kept him hospital bound for six years and has left him determined to become an artist.

Martino, an inmate of the Naval hospital, soon will become a student at the Corcoran Art gallery. He came to America in 1905. Ten years later, at the age of 22, he enlisted.

In France he fought with the Thirty-second Division. The rigors of life at the front affected his health and on his discharge from the army he entered the government hospital. Martino picked up drawing to brighten the long days indoors. His first painting is now on display at the Allied Artists' association. John P. Waring, a director, is financing the veteran's course in the art school.

A Sure Thing

The raw material from which the products of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) are made is an uncertain quantity. "Oil is where you find it!"

Science is helping the search. The torsion balance, seismograph and magnetometer may aid in locating places which hold promise of being oil bearing—but that is all. No one knows exactly where oil will be found or how much will be recovered.

Working with an uncertain source of supply has not prevented the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) from building its business with certainty.

From a raw material of uncertain location and quantity this Company has produced products of untailing dependability, supplying them through the years with an unwavering regularity wherever and whenever needed. It has built its entire business with certainty on solid principles of integrity.

Year after year this Company has proved a satisfying source of livelihood for thousands of employees. Year after year this Company has paid to its stockholders reasonable returns on their investments. Year after year this Company has supplied products and services satisfactory to the motorists of the Middle West.

The man securing work in this organization finds open to him every opportunity to advance as warranted by his effort and ability.

The widow finds in its stock a safe investment insuring fair returns.

The motorist traveling the highway finds at its Service Stations dependable fuel and oil and expert attention.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has served the public for so many years with such definite certainty that this service is taken for granted.

At thousands of points in all parts of the ten states, the products and the services of this Company are always ready—and always the same.

The man who buys Red Crown gasoline in Kansas knows that he will get exactly the same fuel when he goes to North Dakota. Polarine or Iso-Vis mean the same thing—dependable, scientific lubrication—in ten states every day in the year.

Courtesy and thoughtfulness are found behind the sign of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) as surely on a remote country road as in a great city.

Throughout all its territory, every day, in all its relations with the public, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) stands for a dependability that never varies. The people of the Middle West have learned to expect much from this Company. Their expectations, their confidence are high tributes earned by a long record of faithful service.

League Becomes a

Boston, May 28—(AP)—George H. Sisler, once one of the greatest first basemen and batters in the American League, joined the ranks of the Boston Braves today by virtue of outright purchase from the Washington Senators.

The deal was the first consummated by the Braves under the management of Rogers Hornsby, star second sacker, who took over the reins from Jack Slater a few days ago.

It brought to Boston Hornsby's strongest rival in the affection of St. Louis fans in the days when Hornsby wore a Cardinal uniform and Sisler the Brown.

It was generally believed that Sisler would take Dick Burrows' place at first and that Burrows, who has not demonstrated anything like his old time form, would be held temporarily as a reserve.

Sisler has been on the market without a taker since shortly after the opening of the season, and there were persistent reports that recurrence of eye and sinus trouble which had forced him out of the game in 1923 had robbed him of his effectiveness.

No details of the financial arrangements were made public but it was reported that the Braves, in addition to assuming Sisler's contract, probably paid considerably over the waiver price of $7,500.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 28—(AP)—Nine cars were to be given their last chance today to qualify for the annual 500-mile automobile race to be held Wednesday at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Included in the group were four Duesenbergs, and two speedsters which were wrecked either in practice spins or while their drivers were trying to qualify them for the long race.

A corps of mechanics worked all night on the car Pete de Paolo, 1927 speedway champion, wrecked last Saturday when he lost control while speeding at 115 miles an hour out of the back stretch in an effort to have it ready for test today. Wilbur Shaw, of Indianapolis, was expected to drive the car.

The machine, owned by Henry Kohler of Chicago, which was wrecked last Friday while Kelly Patillo of Los Angeles was driving it also was being tuned for a test today.

Kohler will be at the wheel. Twenty four cars and drivers qualified for the race in trials held Saturday and Sunday. Leon Duray, heavy footed Californian, gave the fans a real thrill when he negotiated one turn of the rough course in slightly better than 124 miles an hour. After changing tires he came back to establish a mark of 123 miles an hour for the ten mile qualification. His tires were almost in shreds when he finished.

Nineteen cars met the qualification requirements satisfactorily on Saturday and five more on Sunday. With one exception every car was qualified at better than one hundred miles an hour average.

Indianapolis—(AP)—Proof given last year that super-speed alone is inadequate has prompted development of cars of greater stamina for the 1928 Indianapolis motor race, May 30.

The twenty-third fastest car, driven by the collegian, George Souders, of Lafayette, Ind., won the 500-mile contest last year, while the twelve fastest machines succumbed to motor trouble within the first 450 miles.

Enough speed was developed in the tiny 91½ cubic inch displacement motors for the hard, rough brick course, but the cars, capable of doing 140 miles an hour, were too frail to withstand the heavy pounding incident to 200 circuits of the two and a half mile oval.

So, scarcely had the last whiff of castor oil dissolved in the breeze last May when the engineers hauled the scared motors of competing cars to the laboratories to attack the problem of making them sturdier.

Now information trickling out of motor car manufacturing plants indicates that stamina will be on a par with speed when the little cars again are pushed to the starting wire. It will be the third time the 91½ inch motors—the smallest ever built for automobile racing or for American passenger cars—have been used in the gruelling contest, which will be the sixteenth annual renewal.

Three spitting roar of racing cars circling the track is heard daily now as drivers seek to learn the lay of the track and adjust their shock absorbers to the many bumps. Rail birds whisper to the purring roar: "It won't be long now!"

Heading the list of drivers competing for the $100,000 in prize money will be the "big three" of the 1927 event: Souders, Earl Devore and Tony Gulotta, who finished first, second and third, respectively.

Other entrants probably will include Pete de Paolo, 1925 winner and record holder for the race with an average of 101.13 miles per hour; Cliff Durant, Cliff Woodbury, Phil Shafer, Leon Duray, Dave Evans, Bob McDonough, Eddie Hearne, Frank Elliott and possibly Tommy Milton.

Earl Cooper will not drive, but he may manage an Indianapolis race team, Norman Batten of Brooklyn, N. Y., who thrilled 125,000 persons last year by heroically staying with his blazing racer to guide it from the track, also will be missing.

The usual rules will govern. Each car will be compelled to show a minimum of 90 miles an hour in the qualifying trials for ten miles. The race will be limited to 33 starters, position being determined by the speed shown in the qualifying trials.

Watching the Big Scoreboard

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Fine pitching performances by Carl Mays and Sheriff Blake have enabled Cincinnati and Chicago to strengthen their hold in first and second places in the National League pennant race.

Mays, who pitched his submarine slant in the American League for slants in the Reds to 2 to 0 victory over the Cardinals at St. Louis yesterday. It was a costly victory for the league-leaders, however, for Red Lucas, ace of the pitching staff, suffered a broken bone in his wrist during batting practice.

Forty thousand persons jammed Wrigley Field to see Blake blank the Pittsburgh Pirates, 3 to 0, granting five scattered safeties. It was Blake's fifth straight victory of the season. Two of the Cubs' runs were driven in by Cliff Heathcote.

third place by nosing out the Phils in both ends of a double-bill. Ott's single scoring Roush gave McGraw's clan the first game in the eleven-inning, 5 to 4. It was Benton's eighth victory in ten starts, all of them complete games. Don Hurst's wild throw permitted Terry to score the winning run in the ninth inning of the night-cap, Virgil Barnes recording a 2 to 1 victory.

The Robins and Boston Braves divided a double-header at Brooklyn. The Braves won the first game, 4 to 1, by bunching the five hits they got off three Dodger pitchers. Ed Brandt pitched effective ball for Hornsby's club. Home runs by Del Bissonette and Harvey Hendrick aided Elliott turn back the invaders in the night-cap, 8 to 3.

The best pitching of the day, however, came in the American League. Hadley gave Philadelphia only two hits as the Washington Senators downed the Athletics, 4 to 1. Although practically hit-proof Hadley was in constant trouble because of his generosity in handing out passes—seven to be exact.

The St. Louis Browns gained an even break in their series with the Indians by taking the last game, a free-hitting affair, 10 to 8. Uhle and Blaeholder were batted hard.

Ted Lyons beat Elam Van Gilder in a pitcher's battle at Chicago and the White Sox nosed out Detroit, 3 to 2. Lyons held the Tigers to four hits, one of them Fothergill's home run in the fifth. Metzler and Barrett led the Sox attack.

Babe Ruth hit a home run, two singles, walked one and struck out once as the New York Yankees beat York, of the New York-Pennsylvania League in an exhibition game, 9 to 2.

COMMERCE NEWS

FISHING TO MUSIC
Halifax—(AP)—Fishermen of the Nova Scotia fleets are handling their lines and nets these days to the accompaniment of music broadcast from the new wireless station at Louisburg. Not only are musical programs sent to the men on the banks, but the fleets are kept informed by daily reports of bait in storage, weather and ice conditions, prevailing prices and catches of vessels making port at Boston and Gloucester, as well as news items.

STEEL TIES USED
Johannesburg—(AP)—Steel railroad ties are being used in growing numbers by the South African Railway administration, being put into service whenever conditions permit.

BANK RATE IS RECORD RUN
London—(AP)—April marked the end of the first year of an unchanged 4-1/2 percent rate for the Bank of England, a record run. When the rate was established it was believed it would be only temporary, but heavy gold withdrawals and the increase in the Federal Reserve rate in the United States prevented return to lower levels.

SEA-GOING GARAGES
Bayonne, N. J.—(AP)—Floating service stations, carrying trained mechanics, parts, supplies and other necessities will cruise eastern waters during the coming yachting season to bring factory facilities right to the gunwales of motor craft manufactured by a large Bayonne company. Boat owners having difficulties simply notify the factory and the nearest service boat is instructed to answer the call.

THOUSAND USES FOR COTTON
Washington—(AP)—The Department of Commerce, which has been investigating the possibility of finding new uses for cotton, has discovered that there are already 1,000 uses for the 135 base fabrics made wholly or in part from the staple. Some 150 different articles made of cotton are used on farms, 100 in households, 43 by railroads and 20 in industry, yet per capita consumption has gained only slightly in the past decade.

FORM MARBLE CONSORTIUM
Lagham—(AP)—A consortium has been formed under government control by marble producers of Carrara and Fivizzano, Italy. Producers of rough and sawn marble in the two districts are obliged to transact all business through the consortium, which guarantees to buyers the source and quality, makes all deliveries and collects accounts. Artistic works in Carrara marble are exempt from consortium rulings.

USE BRANCHES FOR PACKING
Johannesburg—(AP)—A British firm recently used a packing case made of woven branches for shipping china to South Africa. Slides were woven of twigs about three inches apart and the corners were made of larger branches. Straw was used generously inside and no breakage was reported, due to the elastic quality of the container.

ENLARGE CROYDON AIRPORT
London—(AP)—More than $1,000,000 has been spent to enlarge Croydon, airport of London. Nearly 400 acres are covered in the new airport and the buildings include a 50-room hotel for the accommodation of the airplane-using public arriving or departing during the night hours. A wireless direction finder and a beacon which can be seen 50 miles also are included in the equipment.

WALRUS INDUSTRY DULL
Nome—(AP)—Walrus and sea lions who park on Alaska's shores are to be protected from slaying for commercial purposes for two more years. Killing for needed food or clothing by natives, miners and explorers will be permitted, or in the case of sea lions to protect salmon runs, but in order to preserve the animals, killing for shipping or selling is prohibited.

SUMATRA ENJOYS BOOM
Medan, Sumatra—(AP)—Sumatra is rapidly attaining first rank in plantation of many tropical crops as the result of rapid expansion of its tillable acreage. New areas planted to rubber last year are reported to be twice as great as in any previous two years, yet only about 1,000,000 of the 30,000,000 acres available are in use.

"BYGGE OCH BO"
Stockholm—(AP)—"Bygge och Bo" or "Own your own home" is becoming a popular phrase in Sweden due largely to exhibitions intended to encourage the construction of better and more beautiful homes. Many articles of American manufacture, such as sewing machines, refrigerators, floor polishers, washing machines and vacuum cleaners, are demonstrated. The government contributes surplus profits from lotteries to aid in financing the exhibitions.

AMERICAN PERFUMES ABROAD
Cairo—(AP)—If the Sphinx could speak, it might tell of the increasing popularity of American perfumes in Egypt. French toiletries still command most sales, due to low prices, but there is a growing demand for American products, imports of which have doubled since 1922. The market still is almost entirely urban, since people in villages and rural districts have little use for such luxuries.

KNOX PLAYER LEADS
Monmouth, Ill., May 26—(AP)—Latimer of Knox college is leading the Little Ten golf tournament after yesterday's play. He turned in a score of 80. Ungher of North Central followed him with 85. Kharishu, versatile Augustana star, made the preliminary round in 86. Kennedy of Bradley Tech turned in an 88. Par is 72. The winner of the tourney is to be decided by low score for 36 holes in two days play.

Boy Who Tried to Wreck Train to Jail

Savanna—Kenneth Meader, 17, a resident of Clinton, Ia., who ten days ago admitted that he had attempted to wreck the Southwest Limited, the Milwaukee road's crack train running between Milwaukee and Kansas City, has been sentenced to serve a term in the Iowa state industrial school for boys at Eldora, Ia.

He has been in custody at Clinton since a few days after he threw a switch with the intention of wrecking the train, his only object being to "see the cars pile up," he told railroad detectives. He hid in the bushes near by expecting to "enjoy" the wreck, but the engineer, observing the red light against his train, brought it to a stop in time to prevent disaster. Meader said it had not occurred to him that the automatic signal system would warn the train crew.

Oak Forest Leaves

Oak Forest—The Oak Forest school closed Friday, May 25th, with a picnic in the Yater's cottage in Miller's woods by the river. The cottage was kindly given over to the picnicers for the day by the present occupants, Jacob Sheffer and Ernest Spade, of Amboy. As the day was quite cool this shelter was much appreciated, as was also the use of the gasoline stove to make coffee. The dinner was abundant and delicious, and was followed by generous servings of ice cream. Some of the young people enjoyed boat riding in the afternoon, while others wandered through the woods and gathered wild flowers. There were seventy-three present. The teacher, Miss Dorothy Beede, has been retained for the coming year.

Bernice Burrows and Ethel Livan hiked from the Burrows home, 2302 First street to the home of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Becker in Palmyra, one day recently. Refusing all offers of rides the girls walked the entire distance, about eight miles in two hours.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"ANCIENT AND MODERN NECRONOMANCY, ALIAS MESMERISM AND HYPNOTISM, DENOUNCED" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, May 27.

The Golden Text was from Malachi 4:2, "Unto you that fear my name shall the sun of righteousness arise with healing in his wings."

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Behold, I give unto you power to tread on serpents and scorpions, and over all the power of the enemy; and nothing shall by any means hurt you. Notwithstanding in this rejoice not, that the spirits are subject unto you; but rather rejoice, because your names are written in heaven" (Luke 10:19, 20).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Christianity as Jesus taught it was not a creed, nor a system of ceremonies, nor a special gift from a ritualistic Jehovah; but it was the demonstration of divine Love casting out error and healing the sick, not merely in the name of Christ, or Truth, but in demonstration of Truth" (p. 135).

WITH PRESBYTERIANS
Tulsa, Okla., May 26—(AP)—A resolution requiring the Princeton Theological Seminary committee of eleven to nominate members of a proposed new governing board for that institution and report them for approval to the General Assembly next Monday, was adopted by the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church in the U. S. A. here today.

The resolution asked that Dr. Francis L. Patton, of Bermuda, oldest living former moderator be included in the new board.

The resolution was designed to placate some of the foes of a majority report by the committee of eleven which recommended that the present boards of directors and trustees be supplemented by a single governing board for the seminary.

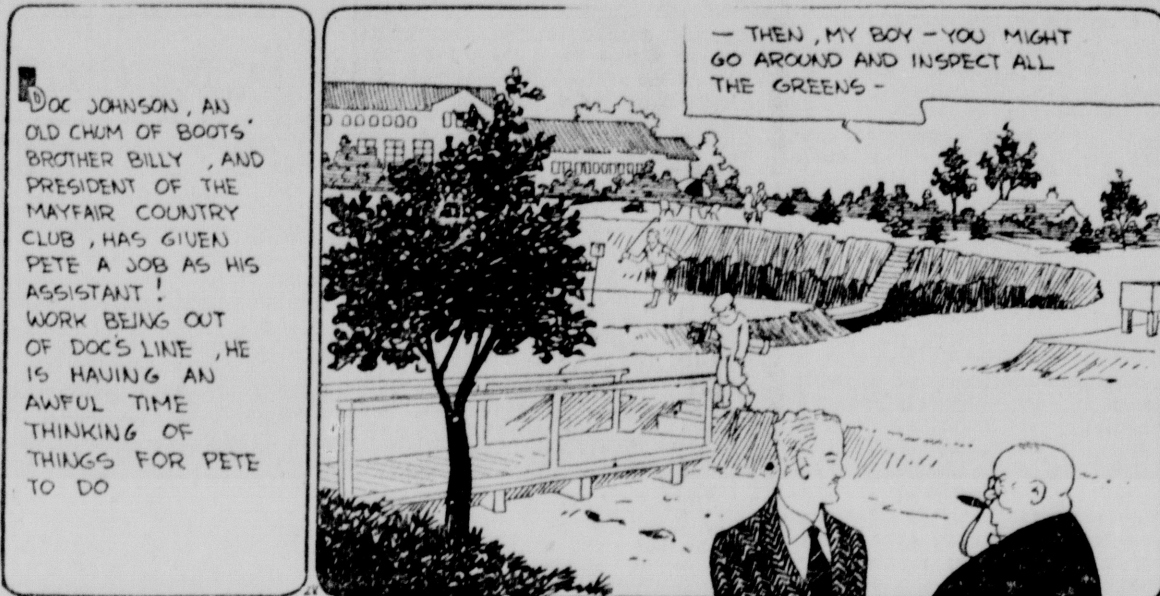

LETTER GOLF

POOR ADVICE FOR DRIVERS
Don't RIDE FAST on your way to the picnic grounds Memorial Day, but it's safe and sane sport in letter golf. Par is five and one solution is on page 9.

THE RULES
1—The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes. COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.
2—You can change only one letter at a time.
3—You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each pump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count.
4—The order of letters cannot be changed.
One solution is printed on page 9.

The Hospital as a Health Resort

By Henry Parker Newman, M. D., San Diego, Calif. Member Gorgas Memorial

(The following is one of a series of articles prepared under the direction of the Gorgas Memorial as part of its Better Health and Longer Life program. President Coolidge is the honorary president of the Memorial, which has been organized and endowed by prominent doctors and laymen throughout the country to perpetuate the work of the late Major-General Gorgas in preventing unnecessary illness. Headquarters of the Gorgas Memorial are at 400 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago.)

What is the place for the sick one in modern society? The old homes with their spacious interiors are passing and the average family house or apartment contains just enough room for the minimum requirements of living.

Organized industries look after our laundry work and provide us with public dining rooms and places to read, play games and dance. Sleeping, bathing and caring for the children are the principal functions of the domestic interior.

But as we restrict our intimate quarters to the bungalow and the single apartment the hospital is growing in efficiency of accommodation and in capacity. It is also growing in public esteem. Formerly it was said: "They have taken him to a hospital" in pity and reproach; now they say: "Haven't they taken him to a hospital?" in astonishment and admiration. Nowhere else can the sick be adequately cared for today. No home possesses the equipment essential to the elaborate requirements of the modern patient.

For as science becomes more knowing every day, it is understood that the weapons with which disease may be fought and comfort and cure effected are many and complex. The laboratory, the x-ray, the hydro and mechano-therapeutic measures, the instruments for studies in metabolism and the thousand and one surgical techniques are all beyond possibilities of the home as they are of the ordinary consulting office. Yet every sick person is entitled to every advantage to be gained from any of these and other scientific means of examination and treatment.

The answer of the future is the standardized hospital. Every progressive community will have its health center and community hospital and, with the "Gorgas Idea" of preventive medicine, do away largely with serious illness and premature death. We are seeing the approach of that day and have gone far, but the profession and the community have much hard work of a co-operative sort before them in order to place the hospital before the public as the health resort of all the people. All its advantages must be so well understood that the first menacing symptoms of ill health will cause the tired business man, the ailing woman, the suffering child, to think of the hospital as the place of help. It will be the harbor where the body's rocking boat will come into safe waters, and the time of shelter there will be looked back upon with pleasant memories and not with the old repugnance and fear.

AN ELEMENT FOR KEEPING YOUNG

Potassium is an element that relaxes the tissues of the body, making them soft and pliable, and for this reason should be of particular value to counteract the tension that so many people labor under in this age of speed madness. It increases growth, strength, longevity, and is essential to reproducing the species. This does not mean that you should go out and eat a quantity of potash, such as is used for fertilizer, because if you did your relatives would probably have the task of selecting suitable flowers. Neither potassium nor any of the other mineral salts can be properly assimilated by the body unless they have been first prepared for our use by lower forms of organic life, particularly the plants.

You probably know that protein foods are so essential to life because of the nitrogen they contain, leave powerful acid and products which must be neutralized or thrown out of the body, or they would destroy it. These phosphorus, sulphuric, and trile acids are neutralized by potassium and sodium. Potassium also protects us against many of the virulent poisons of intestinal putrefaction as it is utilized by the liver for this specific purpose.

When your doctor tells you that you are suffering from acidosis, he probably means that you are lacking in potassium, sodium, calcium, and other alkaline-producing elements. The best cure for acidosis is to use the fruits and vegetables that are richest in these elements. Potassium, like nitrogen, can not be used in its pure state by the body. It has to come to us in an organized form.

Many people who are underweight and easily exhausted are starving for potassium because it is necessary to assist in the changing of certain food products so that they can be used by our tissues. For instance, grape sugar is stored in the tissues as an animal starch called glycogen. A portion of the latter may be converted into fat. Potassium is required to bring about these important changes. It is also needed to reconvert peptides and amino acids into proteins of our muscles and blood.

Potassium as well as being one of the lightest and softest metals is also one of the most electro-positive, and it is this latter fact that is supposed to account for its being so essential to the vigor of the brain and nervous system.

There could be no life of either plant or animal without potassium, and I am giving you a list of those foods which I recommend that are richest in this valuable element. They are: Tomatoes, turnips, celery, dandelion, rutabagas, watercress, and cucumbers. Rhubarb, lettuce, sorrel, cabbage and Swiss chard are also as rich in potassium, but I do not recommend them unless the other vegetables are hard to obtain.

If you want to keep your muscles pliable, your arteries from hardening, and your glandular secretions sufficiently alkaline, eat plenty of potassium. As a preventer of many diseases, it is valuable. It is an interesting fact that plants which become infested with parasites are usually grown on soil that is deficient in this element.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION—W. Y. T. writes: "I cannot drink anything cold. If I do it gives me a cold, and a heavy feeling in my stomach which I don't get over in a week or two. What is my trouble and can you help me?"

ANSWER—Some stomachs are particularly sensitive to cold, and it seems to me the sensible plan for you to adopt is to use warm or only slightly cool drinks, but never cold ones. It is never a good plan for anyone to drink very cold liquids.

QUESTION—Butterfly asks: "When was Oleomargarin first used, and what was its composition?"

ANSWER—Oleomargarin was devised in 1870 by the French chemist, Mege Mouriés. He used beef oleo (oleo is the oil obtained from animal fat), milk and water, churning them together and using annatto, a dye obtained from the annatto tree of Central America, to color it.

QUESTION—Mary J. writes: "I have been troubled with my hands sweating. Will you please publish a cure for this?"

ANSWER—Excessive sweating of the hands is generally a sign of some nervous disorder. If you will search out the cause of your trouble you will no doubt find that your nervousness originates from dietetic errors and lack of exercise. If you will get up a good sweat every day this will help materially in throwing out irritating impurities which may be causing your nervousness. Send for my special article called "A Daily Sweat."

TAX BILL PASSED

Washington May 26—(AP)—The House today approved the conference report on the $222,495,000 tax reduction bill, which now goes to President Coolidge. There was no roll call vote. The Senate yesterday adopted the compromise report after receding from its stand for publicity of tax returns. Chairman Avelley of the Ways and Means Committee declared that in his opinion the Treasury could stand the amount of reduction now called for. "There is no question of a sufficiency of revenue for this or the next fiscal year," he said, "but the problem will

Liquor Smuggler on the Mississippi

St. Louis, May 26—(AP)—Walking his beat along the levee early today, Patrolman Henry Kohne heard the chug chug of a motor launch crossing the Mississippi river from the misty Illinois shore. In a few minutes the launch hove into view, loaded to the gunwales and with canvas curtains drawn. The launch tied up against the "Marion" a small towboat moored at the foot of Morison street.

Patrolman Kohne watched the cargo being transferred to the larger boat and summoned two detectives. The officers seized 720 gallons of alcohol and arrested two men who said they were watchmen and gave the names of Arnold Castell of St. Louis and Fred Baker of Batchtown, Ill.

Police believe the "Marion" was used as a clearing house for liquor runners, the contraband being brought to the boat in launches and taken away in motor trucks.

DIXON STUDENT'S ESSAY SECOND IN STATE CONTESTS

John J. Spangler is Awarded Prize by Cattle Association

John J. Spangler of the Dixon high school agricultural class, was awarded second prize in a state-wide essay contest conducted by the American Short-Horn Breeders Assn., his theme being "Brief History of the Short-Horn Breed and Their Adaptability to Mixed Agriculture." Walnut high school was first and Gurnee, Ill., was second.

The essays were judged by F. W. Harding, General Executive of the association, following a trip by the boys to the National Short-Horn Congress, Show and Sale in Chicago Feb. 16. The Dixon boy's essay was: "The Short-Horn Breed started first in England in the counties of Lincoln, Northumberland, Durham and York. At first they were called Teeswater cattle after a river that ran through the country. The Teeswater cattle date back to the early part of the eighteenth century and were kept by the dukes of England; later they were known as the Durham cattle. The breed was first improved by the Colting brothers. The largest ox of the breed weighed 3,024, and a bull sold for $5,000, the first Short-Horn that ever sold for that price. The first herdbook started in America and was kept by Ferris F. Allen in 1846."

When we first got to the sale ring they were selling bulls that had been judged the day before. They weighed around six hundred pounds and sold around $200 which I think not enough for pure bred stock. There were bulls of the Premier and Rookwood Garnet breeding that sold around $300. The average for the bull sale was $357. They then started to sell heifers which sold from $115 to $125. We did not see any of the first prize stock sold. We had to leave before the sale was over.

Coming Home and Suggestions For Improving Our Herds. I left Chicago at 4:55 on a local train. I rode home with a shipper from Malta, Ill., who had two car loads of heavy cattle on the market. He said there were cattle there in the train was due at 4:02 but it was ten minutes late. At six o'clock we ate breakfast, arrived at seven ten, and took the elevated to the stock yards.

Viewing the Animals in the Stalls. We were able to count twenty breeders at the show. We went around and looked at the animals, all of which were of very good type.

Number 91, Annette the 14th, that placed first in the yearling heifers class, took my eye. She was low set, compact, very broad across the back, and carried her thickness throughout. She had a soft silky hide, short in the neck, and a fairly good type Short-horn head. The animals were all in good breeding condition. Number 109, Junior and Grand Champion heifer of the show, was a swell individual; the only criticism that I made was that she was a little long in the body.

Knowledge Received From

In the absence of Mr. Torney, Mr. Burns, one of the field men of the American Short-Horn Cattle Association, gave us the talk. He said that Short-horn cattle should first of all be of beef type, and next to that they should be of Short-horn type. He also made it clear to us that it was better to put an animal first that was a little low in the back, than one that did not have a good type head and strong constitution. He brought this out in the first ring of cattle that we judged. He told us that the Bates cattle were bred by Thomas Bates and the Bates Topped were other cattle crossed to Bates Blood. The straight Scotch cattle are cattle that trace back both sire and dam to cattle bred in Scotland. The Scotch Topped are Scotch bulls crossed on Bates cows.

What I Received From the Sale Ring. When we first got to the sale ring they were selling bulls that had been judged the day before. They weighed around six hundred pounds and sold around $200 which I think not enough for pure bred stock. There were bulls of the Premier and Rookwood Garnet breeding that sold around $300. The average for the bull sale was $357. They then started to sell heifers which sold from $115 to $125. We did not see any of the first prize stock sold. We had to leave before the sale was over.

Coming Home and Suggestions For Improving Our Herds. I left Chicago at 4:55 on a local train. I rode home with a shipper from Malta, Ill., who had two car loads of heavy cattle on the market. He said there were cattle there in the yards from the week before that were not sold yet.

I think the best way to improve our herd is to buy Short-horn, Pure Bred, good type sires and cross them on the best of our cows and only save the best offspring for breeders. Cull out every year keeping the Short-horn type in mind all the time. Fatten the culls and send them to market. It will be only a short time until your herd will be of fair type.

Gigantic Pageant for Chicago Fair

Chicago, Ill.—(AP)—Proposals for a gigantic water pageant to depict every major type of vessel that has ever been known to man, from the simple log to monstrous ocean liners, have been made by N. A. Grevstad, noted Chicago Scandianavian, as part of the Chicago Centennial exposition in 1933. Mr. Grevstad was formerly United States minister to Uruguay and Paraguay.

In presenting his suggestion, Mr. Grevstad pictured a huge water carnival, in which the five islands planned for construction in Lake Michigan as part of the exposition, adjoining Chicago's shore line, would form the basis. Gaily decorated canals could be built through and around the island, he said, and the commercial canal running through the city now could be utilized for a "grand" parade of all vessels.

"I propose an historic aquatic pageant," he said, "showing every type of water craft used by man in all ages, all lands and all climes. Nothing like it has ever been attempted on any previous similar occasions, nor is there another city with facilities for a display of this kind superior to those Chicago will command in 1933."

He suggested that plans could be perfected by a committee of historians, archaeologists and scholars of universities and museums.

Citing the possibilities of such a pageant, Mr. Grevstad named some of the vessels which might be considered. "The original sailor," he said, "was probably the primitive man who crossed a river on a log. Then there was the balsa, a raft of large carrying capacity and still in use. The catamaran, a raft boat, the sea-going canoes with out-rigger attachments, the ark, resembling Noah's, the underworld boat of Tut-Ankh-Amen, the Egyptian river boat, the trading vessels of the Phoenicians, the Chinese junk, the Viking trader, the Venetian galle, the Arabic dhow, and a score of others. Modern times brought us Fulton's steamboat, a multitude of fishing craft, and the racing speedboats, in addition to a host of fighting vessels."

Replicas of all these kinds of boats and vessels could be made from descriptions or illustrations or from originals that have been preserved, he said. "The cost of such a fleet would not be great," Mr. Grevstad said, "and on the contrary, I believe it would be rather moderate, if not modest."
